

Sakshi is a full time development professional. Wife of a design entrepreneur and mom to three lovely boys. A passionate blogger and a first time author. A graduate of Delhi University, Lady Shriram College and Institute of Rural Management, Anand, Sakshi went on to pursue a career in development finance. She works with the International Finance Corporation, World Bank Group and leads financial inclusion projects in Europe, Central Asia and Middle East. She has been with the IFC for nearly ten years and has over 19 years of experience in the areas of financial inclusion, microfinance, SME finance, credit infrastructure and sustainable energy finance. She has worked across South and South East Asia as well as ECA. Before IFC, Sakshi was Vice President, Microfinance, at HSBC and has also worked with a venture capital fund as well as a microfinance rating and consulting firm.

